Dear Prayer Partners,

A year ago, I met a man named Mike who was introduced to me by a mutual friend. The Lord crossed our paths recently and we began to talk about daily survival in life and life's difficulties. He had great concern for life's injustices, so I shared what God can do in his life and about his concerns. I offered to visit him in his home and he gladly accepted. Please pray for our next meeting and that he will be saved.

I also had a conversation with my old friend Abel who suffered a heart attack in recent weeks. He is now recuperating and asked me for a Bible. He told me that during this trial, he was hungry for God's word and that no one was able to give him a copy. When he saw me, he thought to ask for one, so I gave one to him. Abel has been positive about God and I ask for your prayers that I will be clear in my sharing of the gospel. This is why—Abel is a transcendental meditation guru and his understanding and view of God is very different from the Bible. This new contact encourages me to share more about the word of God. Indeed, the Lord works in His time and we should be aware of when and how He wants to use us. However, we should not cast the pearls before swine. So I am praying diligently to see if the Lord is clearly leading me to minister to him.

One of the church's leaders is a married woman and the Lord recently answered one of her prayers. She has been praying that her husband would accompany her to church one Sunday. And here is how the story unfolds...Being a believer, she decided to go the extra mile to make her marriage meaningful and godly. She began taking care of the needs of her husband first, before anything else. She tries to be a good wife, serving him with respect. With this in mind and being lived out, she continues to attend our leadership class and is a woman of prayer. Well, the Lord has heard and answered her prayers. Her husband has come, not just once, but to four consecutive services. She has manifested the love of Christ through her service to her husband and he took notice of it. He was amazed and asked what happened to her. She calmly responded with humility about how Christ and the power of His word transformed her to be a godly wife. Praise the Lord!

Finally, please be in prayer for the daughter of one of our members. This daughter is planning a July wedding to an unbeliever. The mother approached me for advice and we prayed, asking the Lord for His guidance and direction. I spoke with the daughter and calmly laid out what the Lord has to say about getting involved with a non-believer, especially marriage. I told her as her pastor I will be sad for her, but if she pursues this relationship, it will not be profitable for her. The mother was thankful that I shared God's word with her, but is sad for her daughter's decision. We are still praying for God to change hearts and minds. Please pray with us. The daughter's name is Hanah.

In Him,

Pastor Danilo San Agustin
